

Chris Schwinghamer

Chief Information Officer, Victorian Legal Services Board and Commissioner

Chris Schwinghamer is Chief Information Officer at the Victorian Legal Services Board and Commissioner (VLSB+C), specialising in digital strategy, cybersecurity and emerging technologies. With extensive experience leading digital transformation in complex regulatory environments, he develops and executes ICT strategies that bolster cyber security and data protection.

By examining technology trends and fostering innovation, he capitalizes on emerging opportunities while safeguarding sensitive information. Chris leads multidisciplinary teams in Data, Records & Information, Cybersecurity, Infrastructure and IT Architecture that support cloud-based applications and modern IT infrastructure, ensuring compliance with privacy and security frameworks.

Chris holds a Master of Business Administration from Melbourne Business School and over 20 years' experience in the IT industry that allow him to combine technical expertise and business experience into clear actionable insights that deliver solutions that support regulatory compliance and resilience in today's evolving digital landscape.