Patent Litigation

ITC Section 337

Steve Adkins is a trial lawyer in Jones Day's intellectual property practice. Steve has tried cases to juries, judges, and administrative law judges. With respect to patent infringement matters, Steve has tried cases concerning chemical and mechanical patents as well as patents involving semiconductors.

Steve has extensive experience in all phases of complex commercial litigation pertaining to patent infringement, trademark and trade dress infringement, trade secret misappropriation, general business disputes, securities law issues, and reinsurance disputes. He has successfully represented respondents and complainants based in the United States and Asia in Section 337 patent infringement matters before the United States International Trade Commission. Steve has also represented clients in appellate matters before state and federal appellate courts, including the U.S. Supreme Court.

Steve has spoken before groups in Asia, Europe, and the United States regarding Section 337 (unfair trade and IP infringement) actions before the United States International Trade Commission.

He is admitted to practice before the Court of International Trade, the U.S. Supreme Court, and numerous other federal and state courts.

Steve is a member of the National Committee on U.S.-China Relations, the ITC Trial Lawyers Association, The Federal Circuit Bar Association, the Federal American Inn of Court (Litigation), the American Bar Association (Section of Litigation, IP Litigation Subcommittee), and The Rotary Club of Washington, D.C.
